MUSIC FOR THE MAESTRO

heard in person can thrill one in ways impossible with radio listening alone. If your course permits, enroll in a music class which offers the type of work in which you feel deficient.

From the problems listed at the beginning of this article, select the one which troubles you and endeavor to correct it. Mastery of this one activity will aid all your music work. Like other fields, music education takes time, energy, and perseverance. However, one can accomplish a great deal and have a lot of fun at the same time, whether one works alone or in a group. Why not try it this summer?

Huff—a story fanciful yet never beyond the realm of the possible—should delight all children. William does so want a dog although his parents have told him he is too young and may have one when he is old enough to take care of it. But somehow, milk is poured into a saucer each day, bones are placed on a pan, and conversations are overheard by William's parents—conversations which only a boy and his dog can have. But there is no dog. William knows he doesn't have a dog—and yet he does. When William goes to the City Hall to buy a license and to the variety store to buy a collar and when he finally makes a bed for his dog, his parents decide that, after all, he is old enough for a pet. But not the black cocker at the pet store. William's Wage—the dog for whom he has bought the collar and license—is a very definite kind of dog in William's mind. At last he finds him in a dog pound, not quite as he had pictured him—but the collar fits! You see? How can boys help loving and understanding William and Wags? (Whittlesey House, 330 W. 42nd St., New York—$1.25)
